PenFed Expands Digital Wallet Offering With Samsung Pay and Android Pay

Alexandria, Va., Dec. 16, 2015 — PenFed Credit Union announced today that they will be adding Samsung Pay and Android Pay™ options to their digital wallet offerings.

These additions serve to expand the already wide-range of payment options, including Apple Pay, when PenFed members use their Visa credit cards. Android Pay and Samsung Pay digital wallet options for PenFed American Express cards are expected to be available in spring 2016.

“PenFed is always looking for new opportunities to improve and enhance our credit card programs for our members,” said Kevyn Myers, executive vice president and chief operating officer with PenFed. “As mobile banking becomes even more popular, it is important that PenFed stay abreast of the latest technological advances and trends.”

Samsung Pay is simple, secure and works almost anywhere you can swipe or tap your card. Samsung Pay works with more retailers than any other mobile payment service.

Android Pay can be used to make in-store purchases, as well as to buy items within mobile apps. Android Pay is available at more than one million stores.

“We take pride in offering innovative and dynamic cards that appeal to all of our cardholders. By making multiple digital payment options available to our cardholders, they get to enjoy the best in the latest mobile device trends, combined with some of the best cards available in the industry,” said Myers.
